HISTORY OF THE USS REEVES (CG-24)

The Guided Missile Cruiser REEVES is named in honor of Admiral Joseph M. Reeves (1872-1948) whose naval career spanned 52 years and three wars. Throughout these years of dedicated service, Admiral Reeves held many positions of significant leadership and responsibility, including Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet from 1934-1936.

USS REEVES was commissioned on 15 May 1964, as a Guided Missile Frigate and designated DLG-24. On 1 July 1975, REEVES was redesignated a Guided Missile Cruiser (CG-24) and is the last ship of nine LEAHY-class Guided Missile Cruisers.

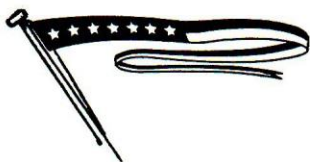

During the period 1973-1978, following a major combat systems upgrade, REEVES made two Western Pacific deployments and underwent two overhauls at Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard. In February 1979, REEVES set a fleet record and made Terrier Missile history by recording 10 hits out of 11 attempts during missile firing exercises in Hawaiian waters. REEVES deployed to the Western Pacific in January 1980, which included an 86-day continuous underway period in the Indian Ocean.

On 4 August 1980, REEVES departed her homeport of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and arrived 14 August in Yokosuka, Japan, which is now her permanent base of operations under the Overseas Family Residency Program (OFRP). During the period February-June 1981, REEVES operated in the Indian Ocean as part of USS MIDWAY (CV-41) Battle Group and in the Persian Gulf as a radar picket cruiser (COMMIDEASTFOR embarked). In her most recent operations from September to October 1982, REEVES served as anti-air warfare commander in Northern Pacific and Sea of Japan exercises with the MIDWAY and ENTERPRISE combined Battle Groups.

On 8 November 1982, REEVES began her Baseline Overhaul (BOH) at Ship Repair Facility, Yokosuka, involving major modernization of her combat systems and communications facilities, installation of several new weapons and electronics packages, and programmed repairs to the propulsion plant--truly the most extensive cruiser overhaul ever undertaken in the Far East.
